Federalists Hear Former Pitt De Larson Calls World Law Key to Crucial Issues

By ARTHUR BRAGG
 Post-Gazette Staff Writer

The processes of law — on a world-wide scale — as a solution to the world's varied problems was urged by a former University of Pittsburgh law school dean at last night's dinner of the United

World Federalists here. Dr. Arthur Larson, now director of the Rule of Law Research Center at Duke University, told 400 Federalists in the Hilton Hotel that international law, "modernized and globalized," is a powerful weapon in man's struggle toward peace.

The role of law in attaining peace is a major theme of the World Federalists who urge its universal acceptance. Larson, in a pre-speech interview, noted that "international law is old and venerable, and most of the time works pretty smoothly."

He said that a recent study done by his 20-member center revealed a startling fact: "It is almost impossible to find instances where nations have failed to comply with international law."

Willingness of nations to agree on problems affecting health, disease, communications and the like could be expanded to take in war and boundary disputes, Larson suggested.

World Federalists here.

He pointed to another study by his center—one involving propaganda. The result was a set of written remedies the UN could employ to curb "one of the most dangerous threats to peace." Remedies ranged from a UN monitor of world-wide television to possible jamming of offender's wavelengths.

Turning to a more current problem, Larson said he was an early proponent of UN action in the Viet Nam crisis. "I even wrote a pamphlet, 'Do It Through the UN,'" he said.

He traced the UN's recent reluctance to involve itself in Viet Nam to failure of the United States to seek its help. "They've lost the will in the UN to become involved. They say, 'Why should you hand this thing to us now?'"

However, Larson observed, "I still believe in UN action. Better late than never, I say."

PROPERTY OF FBI—THIS CONFIDENTIAL REPORT AND ITS CONTENTS ARE LOANED TO YOU BY THE FBI AND ARE NOT TO BE DISTRIBUTED OUTSIDE OF AGENCY TO WHICH LOANED.

In a personal history statement executed by Mr. LARSON at the time he entered on duty at the University of Tennessee College of Law, his birth data was given as 7/4/10 at Sioux Falls, South Dakota. His father was identified as Judge LEWIS LARSON, County Court House, Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Under the heading of education, Mr. LARSON stated he had attended the public schools of Sioux Falls from 1915 to 1923 and the Washington High School of Sioux Falls from 1923 to 1927 when he was graduated. Thereafter he was enrolled at Augustana College, Sioux Falls, from 1927 to 1931, receiving a BA Degree from that institution in 1931. He then attended the University of South Dakota Law School in 1931-32, and subsequently re-entered Augustana College, also in 1932.

It further appeared from the foregoing statement that Mr. LARSON was the recipient of a Rhodes scholarship and studied at Oxford University, in England from 1932 to 1935, where the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Jurisprudence was conferred upon him in 1935. "Who's Who in America" reflects that Mr. LARSON was married on 7/30/35 [redacted] Acquaintances at the University of Tennessee, named below, expressed the belief that [redacted] was a native of England and had formerly appeared on the London stage, but did not know whether her marriage to Mr. LARSON took place in England or in the United States.

It appeared from the University's records, as produced by [redacted] that, following his graduation from Oxford and prior to accepting the teaching position with the University of Tennessee, Mr. LARSON had engaged in the practice of law as an associate of the firm of Quarles, Spence and Quarles, attorneys, 826 North Broadway, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The files of the Knoxville Retail Credit Association indicate that he resided before moving to Knoxville at 4433 North Morris Boulevard, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. At the time he executed above personal history statement, he indicated that he was married and had one child. His Knoxville residence address as of September, 1939 was given as 932 South 17th Street, Knoxville, while his address in 1940 was listed as RFD #10, Ailsie Drive, Knoxville. He listed membership in the Phi Delta Phi Law Fraternity, the Lutheran Church and the Disciples of Christ. His hobbies were shown as guitar playing and singing.

[redacted] College of Law, University of Tennessee, who was a Professor of Law at the time Mr. LARSON was teaching at the University of Tennessee, stated that he knows LARSON very well, has maintained contact with him over the past 12 or 13 years, sees him periodically at meetings of the Association of American Law Schools or the American Bar Association, and has always regarded LARSON as an extremely able man in his field and

as one whose character, reputation, loyalty and associations are absolutely above reproach. [] further advised that he often wished he could have persuaded Mr. LARSON to return to the University of Tennessee, as he felt he would add great ability and prestige to any Law School faculty in America. He pointed out that Mr. LARSON published, about two years ago, a two-volume text book on the Law of Workmen's Compensation which is regarded as an authoritative reference book on this field of the law, in which field Mr. LARSON has specialized.

b6

[] consulted a copy of the Teachers Directory of the Association of American Law Schools, containing biographical sketches of law professors belonging to that Association, and advised that Mr. LARSON was also the co-author of "Towards World Prosperity", published by Harpers in 1947, was co-author with one Stevens of "Cases on Corporations", a text book, and was also co-author in 1953 of "Economic Security", research papers for the American Assembly. Above biographical sketch further indicated that LARSON was the recipient of a Fulbright Advanced Research Award for study at the London School of Economics in 1952, and that he is presently Dean of the College of Law at the University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

From the personal standpoint, [] described LARSON as a handsome, youthful-appearing man of attractive but dignified personality who enjoyed singing and playing the guitar and violin. He recalled that [] enjoyed participating in amateur theatricals and reportedly appeared professionally on the London stage at one time. He also recalled visiting in the LARSONS' home in Knoxville, both when they resided on South 17th Street and when they lived on Ailsie Drive, and stated that they are a refined and happily married couple with two children, the youngest of which was born in Knoxville. While in Knoxville, [] stated Mr. LARSON had suffered some discomfiture from a ruptured disc in his vertebra but believes that this condition has since healed and that he is now in good general physical condition.

b7D

Continuing, [] advised that, in his opinion, Mr. LARSON possesses sound ideas and conservative concepts of the law and government, has had excellent training and experience in his chosen field, is ably suited for a highly responsible position in the Government service and is entitled to an unqualified recommendation for the position involved.

b6

[] University of Tennessee College of Law, recalled Mr. LARSON favorably as a former member of the faculty and stated that, to her knowledge, he was a perfect gentleman in all respects, enjoyed a good reputation, was well liked by other professors and students, maintained desirable associations, exhibited excellent traits of character and gave no cause to question his absolute loyalty to the United States.

[redacted] University of Tennessee College of Law, advised that, other than [redacted] he is the only present member of the law school faculty who was teaching here at the time of Mr. LARSON's employment at the University of Tennessee. He recalled LARSON favorably and furnished substantially the same facts as related by [redacted] although [redacted] stated he has not seen Mr. LARSON since he left Knoxville in 1941. In addition, however, [redacted] advised that LARSON lived two houses from him [redacted] in 1940-41 and thus he was closely associated with Mr. and Mrs. LARSON as neighbors as well as being associated professionally with Mr. LARSON at the University. He stated that he visited frequently in their home and, at the time the LARSON's youngest child was born, he and his wife kept the LARSON's other child while Mrs. LARSON was in the hospital.

b7D

[redacted] commented favorably upon Mr. LARSON's ability, both as a lawyer and as a teacher of the law, stated that he had always found his ideas to be sound and conservative, recommended Mr. LARSON without reservation insofar as character, reputation, and associations are concerned, described him as "100% American" as to loyalty and patriotism, and knew of no reason why LARSON should not be well qualified from every standpoint for a position of trust and responsibility in the Government service.

NEIGHBORHOODS

Investigation in the vicinity of 932 South 17th Street revealed that this block has been taken over by fraternity houses. A check of the City Directories reflects that the occupants of the house at 932 South 17th immediately preceding Mr. LARSON, and those occupying it immediately following his removal therefrom, are no longer residing in Knoxville. The following former residents of the same block, who lived there at the time of the LARSONS' tenancy at 932 South 17th, were unable to recall the LARSON family: [redacted]

[redacted] advised that he formerly resided with his father, who was [redacted] of the University of Tennessee, at [redacted] and recalled Professor and Mrs. LARSON as former residents of the same street in approximately 1940-41. He stated that his father, now deceased, was acquainted with Mr. LARSON and regarded him highly. [redacted] stated that, to his knowledge, Mr. and Mrs. LARSON were thoroughly desirable neighbors and enjoyed a good reputation in that community.

CREDIT AND CRIMINAL

[redacted] Knoxville Retail Credit Association, advised that her files in 1939-41 identified ARTHUR LARSON as Assistant Professor of Law at the University of Tennessee, residence - 932 South 17th Street and later Ailsie Drive, RFD #10, who came to Knoxville in the fall of 1939 from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where he had resided at 4433 North Morris Boulevard. He established credit with four stores in Knoxville, all of which accounts were maintained satisfactorily. In January, 1941, however, the Knoxville Gas Company placed an unpaid bill for $1.55 with an attorney for collection and, as of November, 1941, the Credit Bureau's file indicated the sum had not been paid. [redacted] speculated that this small bill probably had been overlooked by Mr. LARSON upon leaving Knoxville as she said his credit standing otherwise was very satisfactory. No other information appeared in the files of this agency.

[redacted] Records Section, Knoxville Police Department, advised that no arrest records for individuals identifiable with Mr. LARSON or his wife appear in the files of that department.

The 9/23/64 issue of the New York Herald Tribune contains article describing the formation of the National Council for Civic Responsibility of which Dr. Larson is Chairman. The purpose of the group is to "expose the ultra right." The Director has asked what we know of Dr. Larson. 6-

We investigated Dr. Larson in 1954 at request of Labor Department and he was subsequently appointed Under Secretary of Labor in 1954. Investigation revealed Dr. Larson (now Professor of Law, Duke University, Durham, North Carolina, and Director of the World Role in Law Center of that university). W. a. s. educated at Augustana College; University of South Dakota; and Oxford University in England (Rhodes Scholar). He practiced law for four years and then taught law at the University of Tennessee; Cornell University and University of Pittsburgh. Investigation was generally favorable, except for some minor delinquent credit accounts which were turned over for collection. He was described as a cultured and intelligent person and highly competent in the field of law.

The current issue of "Who's Who" indicates that after serving as Under Secretary of Labor from 1954 to 1956 Larson was Director of the U. S. Information Agency from 1956 to 1957, Special Assistant to President Eisenhower from 1957 to 1958 and since 1962 has been a consultant to State Department.

Bufiles indicate that our contacts with Dr. Larson have apparently been very limited but cordial. In 1957 he commented very favorably concerning the book "The FBI Story." In 1954 he invited the Director by letter to speak before the Student Bar Association of the University of Pittsburgh, which invitation was declined.

The files also indicate that in 1961 he was one of several attorneys who signed a petition to the President instigated by [redacted] of the National Lawyers Guild, which petition allegedly condemned the U. S. for permitting the financing and training of Cuban exiles in the U. S. for an invasion of Cuba, "violating all neutrality laws." In 1960 he was one of a group of several Americans who met with a group of Soviet citizens at Dartmouth College to discuss means of bettering relations between U. S. and Russia. The meeting was sponsored by Norman Cousins, Editor, "Saturday Review" and chairman of the Committee for Wise Nuclear Policies and the American Council on Problems of Peaceful Coexistence.

The files further indicate that Dr. Larson has been referred to as "the egghead of the Republican Party" and he has written several books concerning international law, the Republican Party, world economics and arms control.

New Group's Aim: Expose the Ultra Right

By Ralph Chapman
Of The Herald Tribune Staff

The John Birch Society came under new attack yesterday.

"There are more than 7,000 radio and television broadcasts weekly in 50 states now being aired by groups whose officers are either acknowledged members of the John Birch Society or linked with it in other ways. . . . Radical reactionary organizations now spend upwards of $20 million a year."

This "ominous" picture of ultra-right activities was painted by Dr. Arthur Larson, former director of the United States Information Agency and now professor of law at Duke University. He said that is "degrading the American political dialogue to such a point as to damage our self-respect at home and our reputation for public responsibility abroad."

To "expose and correct" the activities of the ultra-right, Dr. Larson announced formation of the National Council for Civic Responsibility. Dr. Larson is the chairman. Members of the Council include former cabinet members, heads of unions, educators, scientists and writers. It is sponsored by the Public Affairs Institute, a non-profit organization established in 1947 with headquarters in Washington.

The announcement was made at a press conference yesterday at the Overseas Press Club. Council headquarters is at 65 E. 55th St.

Formation of the new organization came three days after announcement of a book backed by the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League called "anger on the Right." Both the ADL and the new group have lists of groups or programs considered dangerously right. The Birch Society heads both lists and five additional groups made both lists. These are the Christian Crusade, the Church League of America, the Conservative Society of America, the Manion Forum and the Dan Smoot Report.

OTHERS

Also linked with the Birch Society, according to the Council, are Americans for Constitutional Action, America's Future, Christian Freedom Foundation, Citizen's Foreign Aid Committee, Liberty Lobby, National Economic Council and We, the People.

The Council offered its capsules of the position of each of the groups. For example:

¶ We, the People—Wants impeachment of (Chief Justice) Earl Warren. Investigation of the National Education Association. Wants to get out of the United Nations. "You cannot expect the American people to sacrifice to fight the enemy if the President does not act now to clean the enemy out of our State Department."

¶ National Economic Council—"All branches of American life, especially such unsuspected areas as the Christian churches, have been infiltrated by Communists." ~~Americans for Constitutional Action~~ — "Americans have been running away from their own revolution in order to embrace an armament program saturated with Marxist ideology."

Dr. Larson insisted that there is no connection between "the organization of this Council at this time" and the political campaign. He said that it is a long-range project with an estimated budget of $500,000 a year contributed by "thoughtful people" and foundations. He added that he did not think President Johnson or former President Eisenhower knew in advance that the group had been organized.

It was noted, however, that arrangements have been made for a series of radio programs "correcting the principal errors being currently propagated." These programs, to run 30 minutes each, will be presented, beginning within the next week, on 100 stations in 12 western and mid-western states. Mr. Larson and his colleagues indicated that these are the areas where rightists have made their greatest inroads.

The Council intends also "to prepare, publish and make available accurate information concerning extremist groups . . ." and "to seek the co-operation of the press, radio and television in exposing these groups." There was considerable vagueness as to how the latter objective is to be reached.

The broadcasts, apparently already on tape, will include first-hand experiences of persons who have suffered as a result of alleged harassing activities by extremists of the right. Dr. Larson said they will expose "spying, economic and social pressures, stonings and even bombings."

One of those subjected to such attacks was present at the press conference. The Rev. John G. Simmons, a Lutheran minister, recalled how his home was bombed on Feb. 1, 1962, while he was speaking on the rightist threat to democracy at a synagogue in West Los Angeles. His wife had remained at home and escaped serious injury by inches. The case aroused resentment in Washington and across the country at the time, but there were never any arrests.

Mr. Simmons said that subsequent harassment included efforts to break up his church services, anonymous phone calls late at night and "economic pressures." He said that the tactics employed were identical to those described in the Birch Society's "Blue Book."

"By virtue of the saturation tactics used, radical reactionary propaganda is producing an impact even on large numbers of people who, themselves, are in no sense extremists or sympathetic to extremist views," Dr. Larson said. "When day after day they hear distortions of fact and sinister charges against persons or groups, often emanating from organizations with conspicuously respectable sounding names, it is no wonder that the result is confusion on some important public issues, stimulation of latent prejudices and creation of suspicion, fear and mistrust in relation not only to their representatives in government but even in relation to their neighbors."

At the same time, he said that the Council's counter-attack would be conducted on a factual level in which "stridency" would be avoided.

Sponsors of the Council said that they were concerning themselves at this time with extremists of the right because they are extremely active and vocal whereas those of the left are currently quiet and of little threat to American democracy.

Howard E. Kershner, president of the Christian Freedom Foundation, denied last night that his group was connected with the Birch Society in any way. The supposed link was J. Howard Pew, chief financial backer of CFF. Mr. Kershner said that Mr. Pew has given his support but has not been active in the Birch organization recently. He said also that his "Commentary on the News," cited by the Council as far to the right, has been divorced from CFF "for four or five years."

"We don't get into politics," said Mr. Kershner from his home in Wayne, N. J. "I, as an individual, would work for Sen. Goldwater."

There is no link, either, between the Burchites and America's Future, according to its president, R. K. Scott. The alleged connection was through Thomas Anderson and F. Gano Chance, both described by the Council as trustees of America's Future and members of the National Council of the Birch said that they have given no Society. Mr. Scott admitted that financial support to America's Messrs. Anderson and Chance Future are on his board but insisted. He said that his organization that he has "no control" over is "basically conservative" but what they do, otherwise. He "by no means extreme right."

REACTION TO THE RIGHT—Dr. Arthur Larson announces formation of National Council for Civic Responsibility yesterday. The group aims to “expose and correct” activities of radical reactionary organizations like the John Birch Society.
